Library Open House Set For October 25

By Jeff Daly

The new Clatsop College Library will have an open house on October 25 from 2 to 5 p.m. The library will then take its official name, the Dora Badollet Library. The public is invited, and it is hoped that many students will attend.

Many special exhibits are planned, and featured will be a rare book exhibit from the year 1600.

Invitations have been sent to dignitaries, educators, librarians and many people throughout Clatsop county and the Northwest, and it's hoped that 1,000 guests will attend.

The women of Clatsop College will be serving refreshments to all guests.

Along with Roberta Anderson, Clatsop's library director, all of Oregon's Community Colleges' librarians will be attending. The day should prove interesting, and all students are invited to share it with their families and friends.

Student Health Insurance Outlined

Students at Clatsop Community College have the benefits of health services available to only one or two other community college student bodies in Oregon.

The program, funded by a Federal Grant, is under the direction of Mrs. Sally Condit, an experienced public health nurse. "We are fortunate to have many community agencies who provide consultants and resource people," Mrs. Condit explains. "Many of the activities are under the direction of Dr. Noel Rawls, county health officer. The health office of Crown Zellerbach mill at Wau-na is a source of information on vocational and occupational health. Students with emotional and mental problems may be referred to the county mental health clinic."

Clatsop's health services include physical examinations, immunizations, audio - hearing tests, health education, family planning, and many other areas of attention. First aid supplies are kept in the health office, located in the physical education department.

Extensive insurance coverage is provided through Blue Cross, for which students pay a quarterly premium of $0.50. This covers many costs of accidents, hospitalization, and a wide variety of other services.

Students with bills involving such services should check with the business office about making claims.

Students with health questions and problems of any kind should seek help and advice from Mrs. Condit without hesitation. She is in her office on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 8:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

ASBI Election Results Announced

In elections last Monday and Tuesday, 19 Clatsop College students were elected to various student positions.

Steve Widmer, Ag-Tech freshman from Tillamook, was elected to the office of Associated Student Body Vice President. Chosen to fill the Assistant Treasurer position was Kay Fischer, freshman. Sophomores Bob Golden and Charles Tolboe were elected as Vo-Tech and Liberal Arts representatives, respectively.

Winning the nod for sophomore Class President was Jeff Daly. Sophomore Class Vice President will be Omar Shaw, with Nancy Nordstrom serving as Secretary.

In frosh elections, John Benson was selected as President; Louisa Ruljanich, Vice President; and Valorie Johnson, Secretary.

Elections were also held this week for officers of Associated Women Students. Valorie Johnson was selected as 1970-71 President; Kathy Flabich as Vice President; Beverly McGinnis as Secretary; and Roberta Cotter as Treasurer.

Members of the 1970-71 Rally Squad were also selected. They include Kathy Craft, Shawn Hope, Paula Kinney, Paula Scharback and Sue Smith.

UN Dinner To Be Hosted By College

A public dinner observing the 25th anniversary of the United Nations is being arranged by the Humanities and Social Science department at Clatsop Community College. The event is scheduled for the college Student Union, Thursday, Oct. 22, at 5:30 p.m.

Featured speaker for the evening is Dr. Nasratollah Rassek, chairman of the history department at Lewis and Clark College, Portland. His topic will be, "The Role of the United Nations in the Middle East Crisis." Dr. Rassek is widely known as the author of books, magazine articles and research reports in the area of Middle East affairs. During the last five years, he has participated in television, radio, and public forum panels of Great Decisions programs dealing with the Middle East.

Persons wishing to attend this UN observance and hear Dr. Rassek are asked to send reservations for the dinner at $2 per person to Melvyn Berens, Humanities and Social Science Dept., Clatsop Community College. Reservations should be in today. Mrs. Mary Gabriel is co-chairman with Mr. Berens for the event.

Ag Instructor At National Meet

Cyrus Righter, instructor of livestock technology at Clatsop College, leaves Friday to attend the national convention of Future Farmers of America being held in Kansas City, Mo. He has been selected as honorary chaperone for youth delegates from Oregon, an honor accorded to the one layman each year who has done most to promote the work of FFA. Righter's recognition is based upon his service to the organization while a supervisor for Western Farmers' Association before joining the Clatsop faculty this year.

Righter will travel on a special convention train with 175 FFA youth and advisors from Oregon. En route, they will visit the Air Force Academy, the federal mint in Denver, and the Eisenhower Library. The tour and conference extends from Oct. 10-20.

Meet Continues Through Saturday

Clatsop College is currently hosting the fall convention of OCCSA, Oregon Community College Student Association, which continues through Saturday.

The convention opened yesterday evening with registration and a presidents and public relations officers' meeting. Today's schedule calls for a general business meeting in Patriot Hall auditorium beginning at 10:00 a.m. Officers' meetings will begin at 1 p.m. today.

A barbecue will highlight this evening's activities. It is slated to begin at 6:00, and entertainment will be provided by folk singers.

Another general business meeting will get underway tomorrow morning at 9:00, to be followed by small group discussions from 10:30 until 11:30. The topic of discussion will be how OCCSA relates to other community college organizations. A second small group discussion will start at 11:45, with the subject then to be how community colleges can become more involved in OCCSA.

Tomorrow evening, a banquet for convention delegates will take place at 8 p.m., and a dance, featuring music by the "Surprise Package," will start at 8:30.

One of the convention's featured speakers will be Dr. John MacGregor, assistant professor of sociology at Oregon State University, who spoke at Clatsop College recently on the question of "Can Man Survive?"

Welding Department Has Brand New Look

On September 15, 1970, Al Schultz, welding instructor at Clatsop, put the finishing touches on the 12 new arc welding stations he reconstructed during the summer months for use by the Vocational Technical students at the college.

Also available to the students are 12 new oxyacetylene welding stations. The shop offers basic welding through tungsten, inert gas and MIG welding.

Schultz said, "We have 81 students enrolled in welding this year as compared to approximately 40 in the Spring term of last year. This increase is due to the expansion of the welding shops after the auto showpaws moved out."

Automotive Technology was moved to Tongue Point last Winter because of the danger of igniting gas fumes with the welding process.

Also new to the welding program this year is instructor Everett Butler. He gained most of his practical experience by working for the Oregon State Department of Forestry. He originally worked on fire control, then moved up to division specialist in equipment development for the department. He also served as operator of a district machine shop.

Back To Work...

Another school year is underway, and with it come challenges, problems and excitement. Clatsop College records show a record number of 560 students enrolled opening day. The new library is now in use, with the maritime technology department taking over the library's old headquarters.

This weekend, Clatsop is hosting the fall convention of the Oregon Community College Student Association (OCCSA). The staff of the Courier sends a hearty welcome to all delegates and advisors visiting at Clatsop College today and tomorrow.

Now that Fall ASBI elections are completed, here's hoping that student government can keep the ball rolling this year without too much difficulty. By the way, even if you didn't run in the Fall elections, you can still be an active participant in student affairs. Student council meetings are held each Thursday at noon in the library conference room. Get involved, attend these meetings, find out what is happening, and where your money's going.

Clatsop Forum

The opinions expressed in the Clatsop Forum are those of the writers and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of this newspaper, faculty or administration of the college. Letters should be submitted eight days before publication, must carry name and identification, and should not exceed 300 words.

To the Editor:

The following letter was received last week from Ken Scott, 1969-70 ASBI president.

Kent Israel,
ASBI President

Hi, Fellow Students:

Thought I would write to say hi to each and every one of you from Oregon State University. I hope that each of you has a fine time, and I especially wish all the new student body officers a prosperous year to come.

If you need any help in any way, I expect to hear from you. I would enjoy helping you in any way that I can with student government. Plan to keep you posted on what is happening at Oregon State University. I also hope that I can schedule a meeting between the university and Clatsop.

Thanks a lot for all the opportunities provided.

Ken Scott,
Past President
Clatsop College ASBI

Cultural Affairs Committee To Have Busy Season

The Cultural Affairs Committee sponsored the first of many planned events on October 7 when it brought Dr. John MacGregor, assistant professor of sociology at Oregon State University, to the college for a lecture entitled "Can Man Survive?" In his talk, Professor MacGregor pointed out that the values which Western man has traditionally held have been instrumental in bringing to our industrialized society with all of its greatness and problems. He described those values which he believes are most pervasive in our society and discussed with his audience the effects they have had upon our development, how they influence today's society, and why they must be modified if man is to survive.

Dr. MacGregor will return to campus on October 16 to present a multi-media program on the environmental crisis. The presentation was developed in conjunction with a course entitled "Can Man Survive?" which Professor MacGregor coordinated when he was teaching at the University of Oregon. The presentation, which has been shown to audiences all over the state, is designed to show our environmental crisis in a powerful way. Five slide projectors, tape recordings, and verbal "rapping" are used in the presentation which MacGregor and his assistant, Bruce Bittle of the University of Oregon, call "Where are you at."

Jewell Manspeaker, the chairman of the Cultural Affairs Committee, reports that several other events have been scheduled for the rest of October and the first half of November. During United Nations Week, the committee is bringing two political scientists to the campus to discuss international relations. On Wednesday, October 21 at 1:00 p.m., Dr. Thomas Hovet of the University of Oregon will discuss "The U.S. Position in International Affairs," and on Friday, October 23 at approximately 6:30 p.m., Dr. Norval Rasmussen of Lewis and Clark College will discuss the "Role of the U.N. in the Mid-East Crisis." Both lectures will be open to the public and free, though the banquet which precedes Dr. Rasmussen's speech will cost $2.00 per person. Anyone interested in attending the banquet at 5:30 p.m. should make reservations with Mel Berens or Mrs. Mary Gabriel.

In addition to the lectures which are being sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Committee, a movie entitled "Shoot the Piano Player" will be shown at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday, November 4, and a folk concert featuring a group from San Francisco called the "Mamantia Jangle" will be held on Friday, November 6. Both the movie and the concert will be free to all Clatsop students—part-time and full-time.

Math Teachers Help Host Convention

The Oregon Teachers Math Conference took place at Astoria Junior High School last Friday and Saturday with 215 math teachers from elementary and secondary schools in the area attending.

Mr. William Reuter of Astoria High School acted as master of ceremonies for the conference.

Mrs. Gerry Swenson and Mr. Milford Stevens, both math instructors at Clatsop College were members of the steering committee. Mrs. Swenson was in charge of registration for the conference. Mr. Stevens presented a paper entitled "A Closer Look at Conics."

The students of "Math for Elementary Teachers" at Clatsop College were required to attend the presentation by Dr. Joseph Hachinski on "The Individual Who Teaches Mathematics."

No Math Classes Today

If you're wondering why there are no math classes today it's because Mrs. Swenson, Mr. Stevens and Mr. Collman all took off for Canada.

Victoria, British Columbia, to be specific, where they will attend the 9th Annual Northwest Math Conference.

Math instructors from all over Washington, Oregon and British Columbia will attend to compare notes on the subject of math and methods of putting math into student's heads.

After Clatsop

By Jewell Manspeaker

I am flattered though a bit apprehensive about having the opportunity to write this column again this year. I am flattered because I believe it is an honor to be allowed to have my ideas about what you might consider doing "after Clatsop" published for you to read. I am apprehensive because my insights into what you want "after Clatsop" cannot possibly be as well founded as yours must be. Thus, I am gratefully accepting Jim Biggs' offer to allow me to write this column again, but I must warn you that you alone must ultimately decide your fate after Clatsop. I can only suggest some of the alternatives you might consider.

With this column I hope to tell you a little bit about yourselves by citing some research which has been done at this college and others to determine what students are all about; to discuss four-year colleges and how they differ; I will dig up some facts about and predictions of job opportunities; and I will undoubtedly bring up a few unrelated topics which seem important to me.

Draft Deferments Explained

Recent questions from the graduating high school students lead us to believe there may be a misunderstanding about the availability of a U.S. deferment. Student deferments are still granted. However, a registrant who obtains a IIA or IIS deferment by enrolling on April 23, 1979, or thereafter, may lose his deferment in the future under legislation now pending in Congress.

Registrants who go on to become students are given a one-time option of claiming a IIS student deferment. They need not claim the deferment, in which case they would be classified in the lowest class for which they are eligible, excluding the IIS. But once claimed, the students gain certain assurance of being allowed to complete their college education without interruption from the draft.

The granting of student deferment is considered to be in the national interest—not the individual interest of the student. Retention of this deferment during the usual four years of college requires minimums in performance—full course of study; satisfactory progress; completion within a set time; and completion before age 24.

So long as these minimums are met, the local boards have no reason to take away the IIS. Alternatively, so long as these minimums are met, the individual registrant has no choice in giving up the IIS. In effect, it is a "prove-that-you-are-a-student" situation at the time the initial option is exercised; and a "prove-that-you-are-not" situation thereafter.

The only way a U.S. student can deliberately forfeit his U.S. deferment is to fail to qualify in one of the requirements. There is no choice in the matter, either on the part of the local board members, or on the part of the student.

Intramurals Scheduled

By Jeff Daly

Intramural basketball will begin Monday, October 19, with a big turnout and busy season expected, according to Jack Brown, director. A meeting on October 5 was scheduled to gather ideas and construct a roster.

If enough teams are organized, it's hoped that two leagues will be arranged with a championship bracket.

Intramural games will be played on weekdays at noon with some played in the evening. All games consist of two eight minute halves with two officials. Any interested boys not already on a team may contact Mr. Brown in the athletic department.

Largest Enrollment In History Now At Clatsop College

The largest enrollment in the 11-year history of Clatsop Community College is now recorded for Fall term in the office of Registrar Jewell Manspeaker. The total of 1088 students recorded as of last Friday, the end of the first week, includes 820 full-time day students, 60 part-time day students and 518 evening students. This shows an increase of 159 over the 929 recorded at the end of the second week last year, a figure which included 459 full-time day students.

Enrollment in night classes continues all this week. Continued enrollment in day classes is now permitted only on written permission of the instructor, since class work is in rapid progress.

O.C.C.A. Represents Community Colleges

(Ed. Note: The following article was written by Jim Daniel, OCCSA past president, in order to help explain the organization and its role).

The OCCA (Oregon Community College Association) represents all 12 of the Oregon community colleges. Its policy-making structure is composed of equal representation from boards of education, administrators, faculty and students.

The primary purpose of the OCCA is to establish and maintain positive channels of communication between those with different interests in the community colleges. As mentioned above, this policy-making structure does make policy for all the Oregon community colleges.

The OCCSA (Oregon Community College Student Association) is one section of the OCCA policy-making structure. We feel that we offer a constructive way for students to become involved in policy-making decisions regarding the institutions they attend. We are actively pursuing a course of national expansion of this total system for other states.

We are also engaged in the construction of sound methods of bookkeeping, recording, and budgeting of OCCSA funds. We are actively pursuing a manner whereby we can arrange social and cultural activities from a central agency which would benefit all the community colleges in the state. We have a committee that is studying and defining any problems in the areas of the use of activity fees and the possibility of streamlining or reducing the cost of these fees for all students in the community colleges.

We also have a committee that is to determine if community colleges are fulfilling the needs of minority groups. If they are not, then the committee is to propose a constructive course of action for them to meet these needs. This is not only for the student section, but also for the community college. We are also involved in defining the areas in which political action would be beneficial to the community college.

Mat Practice Opens Monday

Wrestling coach Tom Langan anticipates a good year for the Clatsop Indians. Langan, who announced official tournaments will begin on Monday, October 19, expects to see about 23 grapplers on the squad this season. He has such returning lettermen as Aaron Embree and Chuck Tweedy who wrestle in the heavyweight class; Ross Linville and Ed Lang, 142; Dave Darling 150; and Bob Golden 177. Also scheduled to participate this year are newcomers Steve Bartlett, Dick Storts, Buzz Youngren and Bob Sorry.

Langan adds, "I have another 13 names, but I haven't contacted them as yet." He also said, "Even though this turnout is larger than any previous, the team will still be deficient in the lightweight classes—118, 126, 132." He said, "Lightweights are urgently needed, no experience necessary." He also added, "Everyone will have a chance to wrestle. There will be no team cuts."

Student Council Plans Active Year

Clatsop College's student government has kicked off another busy year of activities, under the direction of 1970-71 ASBI President, Kent Israel.

The first student council meeting of Fall term was held at the library conference room at noon, Oct. 1. Present at the meeting was Mr. Bruce Lower, CCC financial aids officer, who requested that more money be allotted to the student emergency expense account, which is supported by the student body. Mr. Lower explained that the system has been very successful, that the $1,375 allotted for the fund has been exhausted at the present time.

A quick check of the budget revealed that an additional $1,000 has been budgeted for the fund, and at the meeting, the treasurer was instructed to direct the money to the fund for immediate use.

Jewell Manspeaker, college registrar, representing the Cultural Affairs committee, asked that Sharon Gramberg and Bill Hussey be appointed to that committee. He explained that the committee is responsible for contracting movies, speakers and concerts at the college. He also announced the Mr. Tom Gentile, English instructor, has been chief coordinator in this area.

Treasurer Resigns

At the second Student Council meeting Oct. 8, ASBI treasurer Teri Sparks submitted her resignation. She announced she is leaving school to join her husband in Texas. Upon a motion, her resignation was accepted.

The main topic at the meeting, however, was preparation for the Fall OCCSA convention, to be hosted by Clatsop College. It was announced that all 12 Oregon Community Colleges are planning to attend the three-day affair.

Basketball Season Challenging

Coach Lehman Hall expressed optimism for Clatsop College basketball in the upcoming pre-season games.

New "glass" backboards and frames have been installed in the armory basketball court. The Clatsop Indians will get their first opportunity to test the new backboards in inter-school play on Nov. 24, when the Indians host Concordia.

Clatsop will play Grays Harbor in Aberdeen, Washington on Nov. 27. According to Coach Hall, the Grays Harbor team will be one of the strongest opponents the Clatsop Indians will meet this year. Players composing the team will not be announced until after the first team practice on Oct. 20.

Livestock Team Back From PI

Lyle Cooley, freshman livestock major at Clatsop College, earned highest individual honors in judging sheep at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland last week. Cooley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cooley, Rt. 2, Box 215, Dallas, Oregon, was a member of the livestock and judge judging teams from Clatsop College who participated in judging programs at the stock show.

In dairy judging, honors were earned by Clatsop freshmen Pat Brown, Gearhart; Ken Morris, Portland and Evert Fredericks, Astoria. The three-man team took first honors in judging Brown Swiss, second place in judging Holsteins, and third places in Guernsey, Jersey and Ayrshire judging. All judging was in competition with teams from Washington and California schools as well as others in Oregon. "Clatsop College fellows were in great demand helping exhibitors take care of their show animals," Clatsop advisor Cy Richter remarked. "Many of them for feeding and bedding the prize stock goes into the Livestock Club treasury to help pay for field trips the students will take during the year."

... in the Union

The pingpong ball flies under the table as a word—comes out of a pool player's angry lips when he misses his shot. The music blares to a Simon and Garfunkel record . . . and the TV is on the blink. You hear the chatter of boys and girls reviewing their weekends, and the aroma of hamburgers floating from the snack bar.

Athletic Director Optimistic

Commenting on the overall picture of athletics at the college this year, Coach Jack Brown, director of athletics, says "It's much brighter than ever before." Clatsop fields teams in wrestling, basketball, track and field, baseball and golf. Women will be competing in basketball and volleyball for the first time this year, with volleyball practices now being held at the Star of the Sea school gym on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:45-5:30. Any women interested in participating can contact Mrs. Gabriel, the coach, for details.

In addition to school competitive sports, intramural basketball (and volleyball for women) will resume this winter with an estimated 12-15 teams participating. Anyone can form a team by filling out a roster and handing it in to Mr. Brown by the week of Oct. 12. Games will be played during noon hours and evenings.

The first meetings for varsity basketball and wrestling will be Oct. 20. Wrestling, coached by Tom Langan, will meet at the gym from 4-6, and basketball, coached by Leiland Hall, at the armory from 4-6. "The basketball schedule this year is a good one," says Coach Brown, "and it looks like wrestling will have more participating than ever before."

Baseball will have their own field this year through an agreement with the city at McClellan Park. Baseball is coached by Lehman Hall.

Track and field will resume in the spring with openings arranged in many events. "You can't win a meet with only a half dozen men on the team," says Brown. "Especially when you've lost the meet by forfeit before you even start." Track and field needs men. If you want to participate in track and field events this spring, see Coach Grant Swan.

A bowling team is in the making again, all corners welcome and the great event of the season, a table tennis tournament, with the winner going to Siberia, will be held.

Mr. Brown wants to point out the athletic facilities are here for you to use. The weight room is available during the day or evening and if the gym is empty, it's available for you. Says Coach Brown, "The doors are not closed to those wanting to come out for sports. You open and close them yourselves."
